

About the Video: Maximilian Kolbe

Published on Oct 1, 2015

"Maximilian Kolbe" "Some hearts have learned to love amid the darkest human sins." Song Lyrics included for your convenience.

Composed By: Fr. Kevin McGee - Saskatoon, Canada

Sung By: Kieren Martin Murphy - St. Albert, Canada

Recorded By: Bart McKay at Bart McKay Productions - Saskatoon, Canada

Video Editing By: Marc O'Reilly - Saskatoon, Canada

Additional Thanks: To Louis O'Reilly and Tim Yaworski for assistance with this video.

Video footage is from the "Life for Life" movie and is used with permission from Ignatius Press. Ignatius Press is the film's distributor in North America and the film may be purchased at the following link: <http://www.ignatius.com/Products/LFL-....>

Special Thanks: To Fr. Kevin McGee for donating this song to support the outreach performed by The Micah Mission.

This song can be purchased at iTunes and all digital music outlets.
All proceeds go to The Micah Mission (<http://themicahmission.org/>).

Finally, we trust that the memory of Maksymilian Maria Kolbe will bring hope to those who have been harmed by a criminal act and inspire courage and charity among those in prison.

(c)(p) 2015 Micah Mission – Saskatoon, Canada
www.themicahmission.org

Maximilian Kolbe

In a death-camp know as Auschwitz back in 1941
The men from block 14 were made to stand under the sun
In the heat of the day some fell away, some prayed that it would rain
And the dread and fear of death so near drove more than one insane.

Well a prisoner had run away so ten men had to die
In a bunker without food or drink, or a reason why
Well nine men were chosen, but one man chose to go
To give his life for another, a man he did not know

And some hearts can't be held within brick wall and wire fence
Some hearts have learned to love amid the darkest human sins
And who knows what love might sometimes take or give
For Maximilian Kolbe gave his life so another man might live.

Now there's a crown as red as roses and there's a crown as white as snow
For this prisoner of Auschwitz: 1 6 6 7 0
His love was like a light shining hope where hope was dim
'Cause there ain't no hell or prison cell where love can't enter in.

And some hearts can't be held within brick wall and wire fence
Some hearts have learned to love amid the darkest human sins
And who knows what love might sometimes take or give
For Maximilian Kolbe gave his life so another man might live.

Fr. Kevin McGee