

How our work makes a difference...

Through friendship, visitation, support and accountability... we aspire to the transformation of the lives of incarcerated people, formerly incarcerated people and their families

Inmates who get regular visits inside prison...

- are less likely, upon release, to commit new felonies and wind up back in prison
- are less likely, upon release, to commit probation violations that would put them back in prison

Inmates who join support groups after they leave prison....

- are less likely to re-offend
- learn to be accountable for their actions
- form important and supportive friendships
- are more likely to establish stable, responsible, law-abiding lives

Citizens who learn about restorative justice

- are more likely to understand that punishment alone is not effective in changing behavior
- are more likely to understand that punishment alone is disruptive to community harmony and good relationships
- are more likely to promote a balanced approach to law and love
- Are more likely to participate in restorative justice activities

Outcomes from Micah's work include...

- safer and more peaceful communities
- reduced costs to the prison system
- healing for survivors, offenders and their communities
